Description

The first 'evolution' of the famous Delta HF 4WD was presented at the Frankfurt motor show in September 1987. It was named Lancia Delta Integrale and stood out as a car born to win from its inception in competition. The Lancia Delta Integrale was explicitly designed to participate in the World Rally Championship, where it competed between 1987 and 1993, winning 6 manufacturers 'and 4 drivers' titles.

This vehicle has nothing more and nothing less than 39,000 km since it was delivered to its first owner in Italy. Where a Spanish collector found it and could not resist when checking the perfect condition of the vehicle, both engine and interior upholstery that even continues to maintain the original factory plastics. Once in Spain, the car was taken to a Ferrari Corsa specialist where they installed a cooling kit and a competition air filter that increased the power to 310hp. Now we have this beautiful unit to sell.
